

Commercial radio broadcasters in the UK have obligations with regard to their programmes, including music and speech content. Although Celtica Radio does not come under the UK broadcast regulator Ofcom, we believe that we still have an obligation to keep to our Promise of Performance by publicising our Station Format in the same manner as our UK contemporaries. This is termed in the UK, as the station's Public File. Celtica Radios Character of Service was first stipulated in 2000 and has not been changed.

GDPR or General Data Protection Regulation Information Statement.

From the very beginning in June 2000, we have always valued our listeners and customers privacy. Celtica Radio does not collect any personal information whatsoever about our listeners.

We do collect general information such as:-

1. The number of listeners who tune into our live service and for how long.
2. The number of downloads each of our podcasted shows receive in a month.
3. Whois and where the listeners Internet Service Provider [ISP] is generally based.
4. The type of media player used... For example; Windows Media Player, Winamp, etc.

Other than the above four points which are completely anonymous, no other data is collected or stored. Many ISPs will use one server to provide up to twenty of their clients internet access so it is impossible to even identify a single user from our records.
